1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: The prior art of record does not disclose a heat dissipating device as claimed including longitudinally stacked fins on a heat conductive base, a cross-flow type fan having a plurality of fan blades provided at a shaft plate, the plurality of fan blades being disposed within the cavity of the radiator, and air being drawn longitudinally into the cavity and transversely discharged radially to contact the fins.

With respect to claim 9, the prior art does not disclose a heat-dissipating device as claimed including a bottom side of the shaft plate being provided with at least one supporting stand extending therefrom for fastening a motor thereto and formed with a tip air inlet.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

2. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Mok discloses a heat dissipating device having radial discharge through fins, but does not disclose the plurality of longitudinally stacked being "on a heat conductive base plate", and does not disclose an accommodating opening on each of the fins to provide a cavity for the fan, but rather discloses a plurality of groups of fins arranged around the fan.

Lopatinsky et al (6,659,169) is cited to show a heat dissipating device including radially discharged cooling flow.
